New leads harder to come by in death of counselors

(Santa Rosa, California, August 26, 2004, 8:30 a.m.) The bodies of 26-year-old Jason Allen of Zeeland and his fiance 23-year-old Lindsay Cutshall of Ohio were found last week on a remote beach in Jenner, a small town in northern California. They were shot and killed while they slept.

New leads in the case are becoming harder to come by, and some residents in the small town of Jenner are on edge. Wednesday, the Sonoma County Sheriff was on hand at a town hall meeting to answer residents' questions. Some of which, though, had to remain unanswered.

Police say they have leads but wouldn't comment on those leads. Their investigation has returned to the beach where the couple was found, with deputies digging and sifting through the sand. Police however would not comment as to what they were looking for.

Authorities say 21-year-old Nicholas Scarseth had been a person of interest in the case. When Scarseth heard he was wanted for questioning, he contacted police himself. Scarseth's mother says he was cleared of any connection to the crime, but it's not clear if he was able to help out in any way.

A reward of $10,000 has been offered for anyone with information leading to an arrest.
